at Amherst he published a volume of English, as well as one of Latin, verse.

Messrs. Thorp, Linder, Schaetzel and Cohn came in for their regular weekly meeting. To my deep regret, this is the last one we shall have with Willard Thorp, who is leaving tomorrow to take up his new duties at Amherst College. He has been a remarkable public servant over a period of many years.

Julius Holmes came to tell me goodbye. He is returning shortly to England after testifying today on the Katyn massacre.

Bill Gower of [redacted] Paris came down from New York to discuss with me the possibility of his obtaining [redacted] position with the Government or private business in Paris.

Servan-Schreiber, of Paris-Presse and L'Intransigeant, had a long talk with me about the domestic political situation in France and about a variety of the international problems. I have always thought him the brightest of the young French newspaper correspondents whom I know.

Dean telephoned from New York about his [redacted] great difficulties with the Indians and others, especially over the Menon resolution on Korea. We went over the draft of it here tonight. It is [redacted] fuzzy and does not seem to us to protect the principle of non-forcible repatriation of prisoners. Doc got in touch with General Bradley and set up a meeting for tomorrow morning to discuss this with the Joint Chiefs of Staff.
